BRIEF HISTORY

201 Engr Regt traces its origin to pre-Second World War days. The Regt was then designated as 456 Corps Tps Engrs and was employed in Burma and Malaya. Each of the subunits of the Regt also traces its lineage from pre-Independence and has a proven history of outstanding valour and indomitable courage. The trend continued after Independence, and during the 1947–48 Kashmir Ops, 433 Fd Coy constructed the road to Zojila to facilitate the induction of tanks for fighting the entrenched enemy. The act was recognized by the Battle Honour 'Zojila'. In March 1966, as part of the reorganization of Corps of Engineer Coys into Regts, 15, 52 and 433 Fd Coys and 310 Resources Coy were amalgamated to form 201 Army Engr Regt. The Regt was redesignated as 201 Engr Regt in 1972. True to its motto of "Eppothum Munne", the Regt has proved to be an outstanding outfit and has won many laurels over the years. The Juggernaut continues to roll with boundless energy and a sense of purpose.
